

Scouting for Meteorologists

What: "Scouting for Meteorologists" is a biennial outreach by the National Weather Service in Amarillo to Girl Scouts of the Texas Oklahoma Plains, and Boy Scouts of the Golden Spread Council, who are interested in weather as a career or hobby. Scouts are invited to become a "Meteorologist for a Day" and to meet and interact with meteorologist from different aspects of the field, such as television, emergency management, storm spotters and the National Weather Service. Participants will have the opportunity to:

- Generate a forecast
- Participate in a severe weather simulation
- Create a brief TV weather broadcast
- Provide weather support during an emergency incident
- Experiment with weather models
- Learn the concepts of storm spotting
- Prepare for a career in meteorology

Where: National Weather Service office at 1900 English Road, Amarillo, Texas 79108

Who: Registered Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts who are currently enrolled in grades 6 through 12.

When: Saturday, March 27th from 8:30 am to Noon.

Cost: Free

How to sign up or for questions: Please email Roland Nunez the following information at roland.nunez@noaa.gov by March 12:

- Troop Leader Name
- Girl Scout or Boy Scout Troop number
- Number attending
- Grade
- Phone number
- Email address

Space is limited so sign up quickly! Your confirmation will be emailed to you after your registration has been accepted.